And prohibition was breed on an amendment in the Constitution adopted by the States and supported by a federal statute.
School integration, now generally described as "the law of the land," rests upon the decision of the Superime Court in 1954 that all previous decisions were in came and that the Fourteenth Amendment is violated if white and Nagro reserd deen attend separate schools. No statute has been passed which implements this decision. A new Supreme Court could reverse it. Nevertheless, under our system this decision is "the law of the land."
